TELLS OF SETTLEMENT WORKERS IN CHICAGO

Miss Hyndman, General Superintendent of the Aiken Institute, Addresses Ladies' Missionary Society.

The open meeting of the Ladies' Missionary society of the First Baptist church Wednesday night was well attended. After the transaction of routine business, Miss Mary Hyndman gave a most inspirational talk on Christian settlement work. Miss Hyndman is general superintendent of the Aiken institute of Chicago, and in the course of her remarks traced the growth of the work in which she is engaged. The Aiken institute a few years ago was a church right in the heart of one of the finest residential districts of Chicago, but as in the case of so many other districts, the factories came in with their hordes of working people, most of them foreigners, and the residents moved away. Soon after Aunt Lizzie Aiken's death, to whom this Aiken institute is dedicated, and who was the most active member of this once Baptist church, the church was left deserted owing to the new conditions.

Two years ago settlement work was commenced in this same building with only volunteers in charge, and today it is one of the most prominent institutions of its kind in the country. In the kitchen garden department model housekeeping is taught to girls ranging between six and ten years old. A complete outfit for this work was given to the institute at Christmas time—miniature furnishings for the kitchen, dining room and bed room being used to teach these girls how to keep house.

In addition, hammock weaving, basketry, sewing, carpentry, head work and kite making are taught by the best of teachers. There are also special classes for men every Tuesday night in electricity, instrumental music, English, mechanical drawing, penmanship and arithmetic. Miss Hyndman stated that the aggregate number of individuals that they came in touch with each week was 1,713. The creeds represented are: Jews, 33 percent; Catholics, 31 percent; no creed, 21 percent; Protestants, 15 percent.

A fine musical program featured the entertainment. Dainty refreshments were served.

PROTEST AGAINST ASSESSMENT.
Eight property owners of the north side, headed by Robert Schellinger, waited on the board of review Wednesday to protest against the valuation placed on their property by the assessors. Mr. Schellinger argued that the assessment of $100 per front foot was too high and asked for a reduction. The board, however, claimed that land on the north side of the river was worth that much, and allowed the figure to stand.

FISHING PARTY.
A merry party of fishermen left the city shortly after daybreak this morning enroute to Kliner lake, Mich., where they will spend the day hunting the elusive bass. The journey is being made in Charlie Ostrom's new automobile, and those in the party were Charles A. Ostrom, O. E. Lang, Joseph de Lorenzi, F. R. Eberhart, Ralph Jernekan, F. A. Vost and D. J.
